Don't Be Careless About What You Eat

You are either going to the right or wrong grocery shop. That's for you to decide, not us.

But don't be satisfied with goods only partly right, because that's being careless about what you eat. And nothing pays bigger dividends than pure groceries. While few things waste it faster than the other kind.

Consider this an invitation to try the economy of our eatables.

We promise you a courteous pleasing service and the best that your money can buy in groceries, today, tomorrow and always.

MY BANK

It is an asset of no little value for a bank patron to be able to refer to "My Bank" when desiring to establish character or credit.

We are always pleased to have our worthy patrons assume this proprietary interest in us and we are always ready to respond truthfully to matters pertaining to their business interests. And it is not because of patronage that we do this but because business transactions have given us opportunities for observation and experience that makes it possible for us to assist along these lines. If the reader has no bank relations, why not let this Bank be "Your Bank."

Feast of the Blossoms.

O come to the valley of fair Santa Clara,
When thousands of orchards don soft bridal white;
Come, feast on its beauty and breathe the aroma
Distilled by the Gods for this vale of delight.

O come from the North, and the East, and the Southland,
Come homing again, like a bird to its nest;
And here from the heights view the Master's great canvas
When billowy blossoms emblazon the West.

Away o'er the valley, far out toward the mountains,
Foam-tipped lies an ocean of emerald hue
Like soft snowy wings of the wild restless seagulls
That dazzle the eye as they brush 'gainst the blue.

'Tis March in the valley of fair Santa Clara,
Yes March! with his sweet vibrant harp all in tune;
With soft silver bird-notes presaging the May time,
The gold of the sunshine proclaiming it june.

Then come to this hamlet that clings to the hillside
As nestles a gem on a fair maiden's breast;
O come in the Spring-time when buds burst their bondage,
Come, world-weary pilgrims, come hither and rest.

Mrs. Theo. Cutting and children arrived from Ceres Saturday evening for a week's visit with Mrs. Cutting's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. N. Cooper.

The W. C. T. U. will meet with Mrs. L. P. Lewis on North Second Street, Wednesday, April 9th at 2:30. A full attendance of members is requested.

Mrs. Jason Sherman and daughter, Edna, arrived this morning for a visit with their friends, Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Williams. They were neighbors back in Iowa.

L. Genasci is having his residence on North Central avenue remodelled. The present rooms are to be enlarged and a bath room complete with hot and cold water connections added.

Dr. Wasson, our new dentist, is here making ready to open his new offices in the B. O. Curry building and will be pleased to make appointments with those needing dental work done.

Mrs. P. Moore and little son arrived Saturday for a few days' visit with her girlhood friend, Mrs. Thos. Price. Mrs. Moore is on her way to her home at Arroyo Grande, traveling by auto.

Prof. Janes brought forth at the Country Man's Club Tuesday evening several new ideas on the subject of the "Crisis in Morals." The large attendance was much interested in Mr. Janes' lecture.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Hunt of Waukomis, Oklahoma, arrived last Friday for a week's visit with their friends, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Lancaster and family. They will return home via Oregon and may settle in the west.

Dr. T. L. Blanchard arrived home Saturday evening. He will remain in his former office across from the Methodist church until his new offices in the Curry Block are finished. It will probably be a matter of two weeks before he can move into the new offices.

The friends of Roy Thompson will be pleased to know that, thru the solicitations of Rev. Atkinson, Congressman Hayes has secured his appointment for the naval academy at Annapolis provided he passes the examination which will soon be held at San Diego, where Roy now is.

Mrs. E. F. Woodhull left for Lake Pilarcitos on Sunday and Mr. Woodhull went to Brookdale, Monday to be present at the opening of the fishing season. As both are experts we expect to hear of good results. It is even intimated that Uncle Ed could give Isaac Walton some points, particularly in regard to Bait.

A. S. Charlton who was looking for a residence here last week has moved his family into the house south of the library building, recently vacated by S. A. Black and family. Mr. Charlton with his partner, Mr. Webber is drilling a well for The Gem City Packing Co. at Vasona and has several other jobs in this vicinity.

The Campbell Grammar School base ball team went to Los Gatos Friday afternoon and defeated the grammar boys there by the decisive score of 12 to 1. The locals lined up as follows: Henry Oliver c, James Huntley p, Ennis Mullen 1b, Ed. Kennedy 2b, Henry Featherstone ss, Tony Freities 3b, Joe Gomes cf, Bert Benner rf, Gene Scranton lf.

Prof. Butler of San Jose, will speak in behalf of the Home and School Club, on Friday evening, April 11th at the Congregational church. It is hoped that every one interested in the school, and we hope this is everybody, will make an unusual effort to be present. A rare musical treat has been arranged as a part of the program as follows: Duo: for Violin and Cello by Leonard and Servais, J. Halamicek and J. Kalas. Vocal: Spring Tide, Becker, Mrs. E. Kalas. Cello Solo: Selected, J. Kalas.

A Fine Social Event

The annual Men's Supper at the Congregational church Friday evening was a great success, both socially and financially. Under the direction of Geo. Parso the food had been brought and placed on the tables ready for the first gathering. Several ladies were heard to remark that the men had managed to wait on the throngs with a great deal less confusion and bustle than the ladies made which is a gentle hint to the men to manage more such affairs.

After the supper a short program was given. Mr. Baron sang a cheery baritone solo "I'm off for California in the Morning" which was well received and encore given. Messrs. Alec Adam, H. C. Smith and Ernest Baron sang a rousing trio which was loudly encored. The big event of the program, the mock trial, followed.

The case called was that of the people, versus Highley Valley Archibald, charged with maliciously and feloniously, with premeditated malice afore-thought, felling with an ax certain valuable trees. Judge Ethan Allen presided and was a credit to the profession. Dr. Noah Lot Cooper as complaining witness and Slim Williams were very well represented by Tom Mendel our popular English attorney and his able assistant, Miss Mariah Fablinger, militant suffragist.

The defendant with Wood Sturtevant as second witness, supported by the law firm of Smith, Mabel & Henry was defenseless, owing to the prejudicial mixed populistic jury. The jury drawn was composed of Jabe Sawyer, foreman, Mrs. Ex-Vice President, Alton B. Parker, Mrs. Frenchie Robson and son, Teddy Miracle, Mrs. Lillie Langtry Shaw and Long Effie Duncan. Noah bribed the jury with his exhibit of a bushel of oranges, which was properly sampled. Geo. Atkinson and Ethelyn Caton, the marshals, were kept busy keeping the jury in place and alive to the burning question of the hour. The jury disagreed, naturally enough.

Mr. N. G. Finley has taken rooms at Mrs. Rubel's on North First street.

Improvement Club meeting this evening. Important business, try to be there.

Messrs. and Mesdames. J. F. Wilson and D. H. Cramer and Miss Florence Kennedy took a three days' pleasure trip to Pacific Grove and Santa Cruz in Mr. Wilson's auto returning Wednesday afternoon. They report a glorious time.

Mrs. I. Zion has received word from her sister at Omaha who lived just outside the path of the storm. She stated that the newspapers have been too conservative as to the destruction caused and conditions are much worse than printed. She lost an intimate friend in the storm and a relative was injured.

Mrs. F. W. Brundage is having her building remodelled to accommodate living rooms for herself and the telephone exchange.

Laura Blaine was operated on the first of the week, having her tonsils and several large adnoids removed. She is getting along nicely.

Rev. Atkinson met with an ecclesiastical council in San Jose for the purpose of issuing a license to preach in the state to Mr. E. O. F. Ames of Santa Cruz.

The hall committee on the Mass Meeting has obtained the use of the Coffee Club for the 19th of April, when the proposition of incorporation will be discussed.

Orrie Grizzle has moved into the Luther house on North First Street. Mrs. Grizzle returned home Saturday from her visit at her former home in western Kansas.

Ernest Lisle Keesling, Jr., arrived at the home of his parents, this morning, for a protracted visit. He is a lusty youngster of 10½ pounds, and both he and his mother are doing nicely.

Mrs. R. A. Spalding and child came down from Oakland Wednesday for a visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Kennedy, and family. Mr. Spalding is expected Sunday and will return home with his family Monday.

Mrs. Anna Morris, Mrs. Alec Adam's grandmother, who has made her home here for the past three years left last week for her former home at Cleveland, Ohio. Before her departure, Mrs. Henry and Mrs. Chas. Townsend gave an informal party at the latter's home on Campbell avenue. Those present were Mesdames I. Preston, Cassell, Poor, L. E. Shaffer, Geo. Graham and Alec Adam. The entertainment consisted of music and refreshments.

Later: Word has been received that Mrs. Morris reached her destination safely, riding across Indiana through immense tracts of flooded lands.

Mrs. E. Davidson has purchased a new "35" Studebaker, which will be delivered next week. Prof. Cramer is taking lessons this afternoon and will be quite competent to act as Chaffeur.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Rucker have stored their goods in San Jose and will visit at various points about the state for a while. Mr. Rucker has been in poor health for the past year so that he has not been able to do much active work, so he may engage in some occupation requiring less energy. He expects to be back here later in the season.

Annual Meeting

The Campbell Library Association met Monday evening in annual session. The following directors were election, C. H. Whitman, Dr. C. N. Cooper, J. F. Duncan, Mrs. L. F. Shaw, Mrs. I. C. Price, J. C. Ainsley and A. J. Farley, and they choose Dr. Cooper, President; C. H. Whitman, secretary; and J. F. Duncan, treasurer.

The dues were reduced to $1, and the ladies of the Country Women's Club will not be members except by joining.

LANZER TO APPEAR HERE

Arrangements are now underway for a Grand Violin Recital and Concert by the Great American Paganini, Carl Lanzer and the Artists that will compose his Concert Company, for Campbell in the near future.

Lanzer's Name is as well known in the Musical World as that of the Cremona Violin itself. His teacher was the Great E. Molienhauer.

WHEN THE MIND FAILS

MAN WHO SUFFERED CALLS ATTENTION TO WRONG METHODS.

Prevailing Attitude Toward Insanity Ridiculous, If Not Disgusting, He Declares—Mental Disorders Should Be Looked To.

"In every line of mental research it is admitted that prevention is more important than cure—with the exception of mental diseases," says Clifford Whittingham Beers, who created a sensation a few years ago when, under the title A Mind That Found Itself, he published a record of his years of insanity and of his awakening from mental death. "Our scientific attitude toward diseases of the mind is truly amazing. We consider them as something unavoidable. We watch stupidly the disease running its course from a slight disturbance of mental processes until the first violent manifestations of insanity.

"If a man presents the slightest symptoms of pneumonia or even measles he receives immediate treatment of some kind. On the other hand, a patient who is suffering from disease of the mind, the most threatening calamity of life, must be so far advanced in the disease and so disordered in action or in speech as to satisfy a lay tribunal of the necessity of justification of the forcible deprivation of his liberty, must be told that he is 'insane,' must be 'adjudged insane' and 'committed' by a court to an institution for the insane before he can receive the treatment best adapted to the restoration of his health.

"The public should be convinced that insanity is a disease like any other disease; people must be taught to seek intelligent advice promptly whenever something 'seems to be the matter with their nerves,' instead of concealing their fears for mere shame.

"Had I, for instance, at the age of eighteen, when I began to worry myself into a state of depression, had access to advice and information, and had I, as a result of an established and widespread interest in mental hygiene, sought such advice as a matter of course, as persons threatened with tuberculosis now seek the help and advice they need, I am confident that I should not have suffered the affliction of mental disorder. Though I took medicine for 'nerves,' I did not find the remedy I needed, which was a verbal corrective for thought and fears which were to prove my temporary undoing.

"It may take some time before a sick man is no more ashamed of calling on a physician for incipient insanity than for a cold in his head, but let us hope that time will arrive eventually. A campaign of education is sorely needed to dispel the superstitions still prevalent in the public mind as to the cause of insanity."

About Bagpipes.

The Bulgarian delegates would have been interested if they had heard before leaving that the Prince of Wales was learning the bagpipes. For the pipes are the Bulgarian national instrument, as Sir Charles Eliot shows by a striking illustration. Until lately, at any rate, the servants who waited at the porte on the grand vizier were mutes, though not, as in former times, persons specially mutilated, but children born deaf and dumb. They used a language of signs, with a special gesture to describe the representative of each nation. To indicate the Bulgarian agent they imitated a man playing on the bagpipes. It was not the Bulgarianes who invented the pipes, however. They are among the oldest of musical instruments. An ancient gem shows Apollo with them, and two instruments in the Book of Daniel were almost certainly bagpipes.—London Chronicle.

Score One for the Cook.

Young housewives obliged to practice strict economy will sympathize with the sad experience of a Washington woman.

When her husband returned home one evening he found her dissolved in tears, and careful questioning elicited the reason for her grief.

"Dan," said she, "every day this week I have stopped to look at a perfect love of a hat in Mme. Louise's window. Such a hat, Dan, such a beautiful hat! But the price—well, I wanted it the worst way, but just couldn't afford to buy it."

"Well, dear," began the husband recklessly, "we might manage to——"

"Thank you, Dan," interrupted the wife, "but there isn't any 'might about it. I paid the cook this noon and what do you think? She marched right down herself and bought that hat!"—Lippincott's.

Left the Dean Chuckling.

The dean of the law department was very busy and rather cross. The telephone rang.

"Well, what is it?" he snapped.

"Is that the city gas works?" said a woman's soft voice.

"No, madam," roared the dean; "this is the University Law Department."

"Ah," she answered, in the sweetest of tones, "I didn't miss it so far, after all, did I?"

And the weary dean chuckled all afternoon.

HE WAS HARD HIT

What Fred Hackett Didn't Know About Leghorn Chickens Worked Wonders.

By CLARA INEZ DEACON.

"Say, I'm in love!"

"You don't mean it!"

"And it's love at first sight!"

"It can't be true!"

"And I'm going to marry the girl within a year!"

"If it's as serious as that I ought to telephone to the doctor at once. Have you any choice of insane asylums?"

Fred Hackett had motored down to his brother's "gentleman's estate" for a brief visit, and was talking with his sister-in-law. Fred Hackett was always falling in love. Sometimes the fit lasted 24 hours, and on two or three occasions it had gone to 36. He took himself for a very serious young man, and it hurt his feelings that no one else did.

"Say, back here about two miles is a fine house and farm," he said to the sister-in-law."

"Yes?"

"House stands on a hill."

"It does."

"Staving-looking girl lives in the house that stands on a hill."

"Just so."

"Staving-looking girl is to be seen feeding Leghorn chickens."

"Yes, sometimes."

"And I've fallen in love with that girl and am going to marry her."

"Forget it!"

"Never. I tell you I'm hard hit. You know her, do you?"

"Why, I know of her. Her father is an insurance man named Franklin. Her name is Irene. Her mother is an invalid. Yes, there are Leghorn chickens. That's her fad. That's all."

"But it can't be, sister."

"Well, Miss Irene has never called on me. They say she makes no calls. She is a very nice girl, from what I hear. She has a higher education and sings and plays. Won't that suffice?"

"But why hasn't she married?" persisted Fred.

"There may be half a dozen reasons. She has had plenty of beaux but they have come and gone."

"I see. She has had an intuition that her ideal would come along some day, and here he is. Good girl to wait for me!"

"And she'll be waiting ten years hence!" laughed the sister-in-law.

"Not quite a fully day, O, false prophetess! As soon as I call there tomorrow she'll have a feeling that I'm the man. Egad, but isn't it lucky that I made this trip! I felt it in my bones when I started out that I was going to meet the girl who'd change my whole life over."

With that the subject was dropped. The sister-in-law regarded it as one of Fred's impulses, and he had some planning to do and went out for a walk. He had a plan all perfected in an hour, but nothing was heard of it until the next morning when he had ordered his auto around.

"Whither goeth thou, Fred?" asked the sister-in-law.

"To make the acquaintance of my future bride."

"You don't mean you are going to Franklin's!"

"That's what I mean. I may not be invited into the parlor, but I shall see Miss Irene."

"But how? What excuse will you make?"

"Leghorn chickens, my dear. Best excuse in the world. Without the Leghons I should be in doubt. With them I am a sure winner."

"But—but—"

"Tell you all about it when I get back. Delays are dangerous in cases of love. Some other guy may get to the Leghorns first."

Luck may or may not occasionally help out a man of cheek, but she's a sure friend of a man of nerve. She had Fred Hackett roll up to the Franklin house just as Miss Irene came out to feed her cherished Leghorns a late breakfast. He descended from his auto and entered the grounds and approached her, cap in hand;

"Somebody to see father," she mused.

"Or a book agent."

"Or a windmill man."

"No, he's a—a—"

"Excuse me, madam, but I saw your Leghorns and just had to stop for a moment. They appear to me to be the true breed."

"Oh, they are," she found herself replying as she received his card and held it without looking at the name.

"Did you import them?"

"No, but I got them from a person who did."

"I hope he's reliable. I bought my flock right in Leghorn, so as to be sure of the breed. It's shameful how some of these alleged fanciers have imposed on the unwary."

"But I don't think I have been swindled."

"I sincerely trust not," said Fred with a shake of the head to signify that he had his doubts.

"But half a dozen people have told me that they were the true Leghorns."

"Yes, they look to me."

"But if you have the true Leghorns can't you tell?"

"Oh, yes. Do they lay every day?"

"Yes, most of them, and the eggs are so white and clean that I want to show you one."

She ran off to the kitchen to fetch an egg, and while she was gone Mr. Hackett winked at himself and said:

"Not bad for a beginning, eh? I shall bless the Leghorn forever more."

Miss Irene returned with three very white and good-sized eggs and held them out to view with:

"Aren't they just lovely!"

"They certainly are," was the reply. "Those I get from my Leghorns could be sold to Rockefeller for a quarter apiece, but of course I'm not in the business for profit. I send a dozen a day to a hospital and eat the rest. You certainly have a beautiful flock here."

"But if they should turn out not to be true Leghorns!"

"I can decide that point in one minute. Please catch me one. Now, then her eyes are wide open. If they close up when I blow in them you need no longer doubt. It's a test they told me of in Leghorn. All ready—w-h-e-w!"

"She closes her eyes!" joyously exclaimed the girl as she danced around.

"She does, Miss Fraiklin, and let me congratulate you on possessing one of the very few flocks of pure Leghorns in America."

"Thank you. I shall be prouder than ever of them now."

"And now about the feed," said Mr. Hackett as he put on a wise look.

"But please tell me what you feed yours?"

"Um. Um. I must look up the written instructions they gave me in Leghorn and copy them off for you."

"I shall be so grateful to you!"

"Well?" queried Mr. Hackett's sister-in-law as he returned with a grin on his face.

"I told you I'd do it."

"You haven't been to Franklin's!"

"I have."

"You didn't see Irene!"

"Had a long talk with her."

"I—I can't believe it."

"But you must. It was about Leghorns."

"But how on earth do you know anything about Leghorns!"

"Saw 'em at the chicken show a few weeks ago. Say, you've got to help me out."

"If you've been lying to that girl—"

"But there was no lying. I mean there was no such lying as that correspondent up in Connecticut sends in to the daily papers every week or two. You've got hens here. What do you feed them on?"

"But they are not Leghorns," was protested.

"It's all the same thing whether a hen came from Leghorn or Kalamazoo. You feed them the leavings of the table, of course?"

"Yes, and ground food and prepared food and peppers."

That's enough to win out on. I'm to go back in a day or two and tell her what the Leghorners feed them on."

"But you were never in Leghorn."

"But I've been in Fall River, and it's the same thing."

"And you claimed to have a flock of chickens yourself, did you?"

"Had to."

"Suppose the young lady had asked where you kept them?"

"I was all ready to answer in Central Park."

"Fred Hackett, you'll come down with a very large bump!" was the prediction of the sister-in-law, based on what she thought she knew of her own sex.

Does one woman know another better than a man does? No.

Music, poetry, moonlight, babbling brooks, setting suns, joy or sorrow will create bonds between human beings. Anything else? Nothing but Leghorn chickens.

At Mr. Hackett's second call he was invited to sit on the veranda and discuss Leghorns.

At his third he was invited to sit in the parlor and discuss Leghorns.

At his fourth, Leghorns rather took a back seat, and at his fifth the white chickens went to roost entirely. At the end of three months he whispered the words "engaged" in his sister-in-law's ear, and as she looked at him in a puzzled way he exclaimed:

"Irene— Leghorns— told you so! We are to be married six weeks hence! Leghorns— love— luck! Say, you and Tom are back numbers on the getting married business."

No Reflection.

"If I ever get hold of Blinks I'll thrash him so that his mother wouldn't recognize him."

"What's the matter?"

"He's been slandering me. He says that I beat him out of $5 in a poker game."

"Not at all. I heard the remark myself."

"What did he say?"

"He said that you beat him out of $5,000 in a wheat deal."

"Oh, well, then, I suppose it is all right. I hardly thought he was the kind of a man to go around telling stories that reflected on my character."—Life.

Not Much Interested.

"Last night, at a very exciting moment in the play, when you could have heard a pin drop—"

"I know what happened."

"What?"

"A steam pipe began to thump."

"No."

"Somebody yelled 'Fire!'"

"No."

"Then, what happened?"

"A fat woman seated near me leaned over to her friend and whispered: 'Good heavens how my corn hurts!'"

Missed the Mayflower.

"Your ancestors did not come over in the Mayflower!" snapped the tall, spare, thin-lipped Miss Hester Plymrock.

"No," said Alias Ananias rubbing his chubby hands together while an oily smirk spread over his full moon phiz.

"You see, it was this a-way. The old man forgot to wind up the alarm clock, and so missed the boat."—Judge.

Gown Distinctly Parisian in Gray Silk and Beaded Net

A gown of gray silk and beaded net, with a train of gray velvet. Black beads finish the trimming.

PRETTY CASE FOR RIBBONS

Simple in Design and May Be Made From Remnant at Comparatively No Expense.

An attractive case for holding ribbon is made of an odd-length of silk or satin or a strip of ribbon. A piece of material, flowered silk or ribbon, 12 inches long by 6 inches wide; a skein of white silk, a yard of white ribbon one-quarter inch wide, and 12 yards of narrow ribbon suitable for drawing through underclothing are required.

Baste a narrow hem around the material and fold over the lower edge to within one and one-half inches of the top. Feather-stitch the hem and divide the turned-up portion into four equal sections with the white silk.

From plain white cardboard cut four pieces to fit the sections of the ribbon case. Over these wind the ribbon and slip each into its particular section.

Fold over the case and tie together with the white ribbon.

To make the case more useful, attach a bodkin and small pair of scissorns to the upper corner with more white ribbon.

If you prefer to decorate the outside embroider the word "Ribbons" in white silk diagonally across the front.

NEW SPRING STREET COSTUME

A street gown of old rose broadcloth, with sleeveless jacket, Russian blouse style, of striped velvet trimmed with fur.

SPRING SUITS OF HEAVY SILK

For Dressy Gowns Brocade Silk Will Be Combined With Material of More Plainness.

Heavy are among the most tempting offerings in this season of particularly alluring fabrics. The heavy lustrous failles, ottomans, bengalines, poplins and Bedford cords, in rich and beautiful colorings, promise a far greater variety than was possible last spring with its monotonous black, blue or taupe satin suit, repeated in wearying sameness. Another novelty which, it has been predicted, would appear at the Paris openings is silk covert cloth.

For still more dressy gowns the brocaded silks will be used, especially in combination with plain silks of the same shade. Brocaded silk wraps will be found with plain one-piece dresses. A plain charmeuse costume, in a shade between tan and yellow, has a loose medium length coat of brocade. Poplins on which a self-toned satin brocade appears are used in combination with plain poplins of the same shade. Plain and moire poplin are also combined.

VELVET A POPULAR MATERIAL

One Recommendation Is That It Lends Itself to a Great Deal of Variety.

The velvet suit is the most convenient costume of the moment, for it may be built on either plain or simple lines, and it may allow itself a good deal of variety. Midway between these two styles may be indicated the suit which has a fairly long coat deliberately cut away in order to make the most of a stylish vest. Striped velvet, which rather resembles corduroy in appearance, is favored among materials for the more dressy type of costume, such as one of gray striped velvet made with a fairly long coat fastened in semi-Russian fashion at one side, with a close row of crystal buttons stained with black. The revers and collar are of velvet, the collar being faced with crimson and bordered with black satin. Such a coat has as a noticeable detail long and narrow sleeves closely buttoned on the arm.

Bead Embroidery.

The woman who can master the art of fastening colored beads in position to form flowers or conventional figures can give her summer wardrobe a touch of smartness. Bead embroidery is used on dark silk street costumes to decorate girdles, sash ends, skirt panels, collars, vests and cuffs. It is also used on chiffon and net tunics for evening frocks. A band of bead embroidery about the bottom edge of a net tunic gives it weight which insures artistic lines.

Touch of White at the Neck.

No matter what color one's gown is, it is always advisable to have a touch of white at the neck, whether it be a high or a turndown collar, for there are very few women who look well with a dark color against the face.

NOTHING ON THIS AMERICAN

Has Ready Reply to Englishman Who Blamed Climate for Growth of Fine Chrysanthemums.

The American visitor wandered down into sunny Cornwall. Seeing some particularly large chrysanthemums in a garden, he knocked at the cottage door, and, in New York gutter language, exclaimed to the grower:

"Fine flowers, these. Guess I'd like to know how you grow 'em."

"Oh, climate," replied the yokel.

"And them great cabbages, what makes them grow?"

"Just climate," declared the Cornwall man, seriously.

"H'm! Away in New York about all we grow is skyscrapers. Only last year a fifty-story building sprang up like a mushroom. It grew so quick that it had no stairs or lift."

And the yokel stared aghast.

"How—how do you get to the top, then?"

"Oh, clime-it—just clime—it!"—London Answers.

A Misunderstanding.

Elihu Root, at the chamber of commerce dinner in New York, said:

"There are hundreds of thousands of people outside the great industrial communities who think the chamber of commerce a den of thieves, who think that the manufacturers of the country are no better than a set of confidence men."

Discussing this regrettable misunderstanding afterward, Mr. Root smiled and said:

"It is a misunderstanding that will come right in the end; but just now, if a rich man ventured to say to a poor man, 'I believe in putting by something for a rainy day,' the poor man would sneer bitterly and reply: "'Yes, that's why me and my friends lose so many umbrellas.'"

Figured It Out.

At a trial in Macon recently a negro was on the witness stand. He testified that a man who had been knocked down lay on the ground five minutes, and the opposing lawyer challenged the statement. To test the accuracy of the witness he took out his own watch and asked the negro to tell him when five minutes was up. The negro told him correctly. As he was leaving the courtroom the lawyer caught up with him.

"Plum," he said, "I'll forgive you if you'll tell me how you did it."

"Yes, boss," said the negro. "Ah jus' figgered it out."

"Figured it out?"

"Yes, sah, by de clock on de wall behine you."

TRY AGAIN.

Of Course Not.

"Why the limp?"

"Her father—"

"Sure enough? Ha-ha-ha!"

"That's right, laugh!"

"But you told me just last evening that her father had better not raise his hand to you."

"Well, it wasn't his hand."

Unconfirmed.

"Were your suspicions confirmed?" asked the man who is interested in investigation.

"No," replied the man whose mind is on an appointment. "You know as well as I do that congress isn't confirming anything these days."

His Skill.

"Charon would make an ideal theatrical doorkeeper."

"Why so?"

"Because he could collect money from deadheads."

What is Coryza?

Coryza is a medical term. It means chronic catarrh of the nose. It began with catching cold, producing a slight nasal catarrh. Then catching cold again. Finally the catarrh is continuous. Afterwards brown scabs form in the nose, the breath is fetid, breathing through the nose more or less obstructed. Then the victim has coryza.

In taking Peruna for coryza a tablespoonful should be held in the mouth, and then allowed to slowly trickle down the throat, occasionally breathing out through the nose, so that the fumes of Peruna will permeate all through the throat and posterior nares. Peruna has cured a multitude of this sort of cases.

Snuffing warm salt water, a teaspoonful to the pint, is sometimes necessary to thoroughly clean out the nose, which should be done twice a day, in the morning and in the evening.

But it is the Peruna that should be mainly relied upon for a permanent cure. People with coryza are generally poor sleepers, digestion is poor, appetite is poor. Peruna will correct all these difficulties.

Turkish Postage Stamps.

Because of a passage in the Koran forbidding the making of images, Turkish postage stamps have no picture, but bear instead the sign manual of the sultan, which is, in fact, an impression of his imperial hand. This signature is said to have had its origin with the Sultan Murad I., who, on completing a treaty with the Italian republic of Ragusa in 1365, and being unable to sign his name, applied ink to his open hand and slapped it upon the parchment.

EVER READY FOR FIRES

ELABORATE PRECAUTIONS TAKEN AT GOVERNMENT POSTS.

Uncle Sam Furnishes an Excellent Example to the Country in This Respect—Few Losses by Conflagrations in the Army.

Perhaps the low percentage of fires in the army is directly due to the fact that guard duty is never suspended.

In daylight and dark, during peace or in time of war, armed sentries walk their posts scattered everywhere over the garrisons. Falling asleep while on guard is a serious offence. Therefore the guards are always alert. Never is a sentry mounted on a post without a caution to look out for fires.

One of the first charges in a guard's general orders is one in which he is cautioned to keep a sharp watch for fire. His first duty, in case a building is occupied by humanity, is to warn the occupants. Next he turns in a general alarm. And when fire call is blown by the trumpeter at the main guard house every male member of the garrison, except the guard, is compelled to hurry to the scene of the fire, no matter where he is, and no matter how he is dressed.

It is not necessary that a man should be in regulation uniform to respond to a fire call. Military fires do not wait for antagonists in full dress parade costumes, any more than city fires procrastinate while the members of the department make careful toilets.

Once a week, sometimes oftener, in every military garrison, large or small, throughout the country, and there are several hundred at home and in our possessions, a fire drill is held. Not a soul save the commanding officer is advised of what hour of the day or night or on what day of the week a fire call will be blown. As fires do not give warning of their coming, writes Monroe Woolley in Insurance Engineering, it is obviously advantageous that a fire drill should be as uncertain.

When the fire call goes, either for drill or for a fight for life and property, the soldiers rush out of their quarters, leave their posts in the company kitchens, and on the drill grounds, picking up fire buckets and fire axes as they go in the race for the fire station. Some may be hatless, some coatless and others shirtless. But it is an honor to be among the first to take hold of the fire equipment.

All the officers dash for the fire house, too, and the highest ranking officer present assumes the duties of fire chief. A run is made with chemical engines and hand drawn hose carts and hook and ladder trucks for a building designated as the scene of the fire. When the equipment is out for a fire drill the men take advantage of the occasion and play water on the windows of buildings, giving them a good cleaning.

The amount of fire fighting apparatus furnished the posts by the government for their protection is regulated, of course, entirely by the size and needs of each post.

Confirmed for Rheumatism.

Rev. Joshua Kimber, in his "Reminiscences," tells the following anecdote of the late Bishop Horatio Potter:

He had been journeying up the east bank of the Hudson river, stopping for confirmation each day at adjoining parishes. When he reached Poughkeepsie he saw a woman at the rail waiting for confirmation whose face he was sure he recognized and was somewhat familiar with. He was also certain that she had been confirmed within the week at another place. The bishop whispered to her to remain after service, and said:

"My dear madam, what do you mean by coming for confirmation? I am sure I confirmed you on Monday at such a place. Did I not?"

She said: "You certainly did. I have been fololwing you up the river and have been confirmed every day this week."

He, astonished, said: "Why do you do that?"

Whereupon she replied: "Because I heard it was good for rheumatism.'"

Prussian War Centennial.

The year 1913 marks a notable passage in the history of Prussia. A hundred years ago Prussia rose against Napoleon, who was already weakened by the retreat from Moscow, and, with the help of Austrians, and also a very large body of Russians, they managed to drive the French army over the frontier, after defeating it in the tremendous two days struggle at Leipzig.

Many are the centennial celebrations that are arranged for this year, and, as a conclusion, it is hoped that the czar will visit the battlefield of Leipzig at the end of the year in company with the kaiser. The Russian cooperation at Leipzig, it should be explained, was particularly strong, and at least 22,000 Russian troops were killed in the fight.

CONSTIPATION

Munyon's Paw-Paw Pills are unlike all other laxatives or cathartics. They coax the liver into activity by gentle methods, they do not scour; they do not gripe; they do not weaken; but they do start all the secretions of the liver and stomach in a way that soon puts these organs in a healthy condition and corrects constipation. Munyon's Paw-Paw Pills are a tonic to the stomach, liver and nerves. They invigorate instead of weaken; they enrich the blood instead of impoverishing it; they enable the stomach to get all the nourishment from food that is put into it. Price 25 cents. All Druggists.

Portrait of Franklin Sold.

A portrait of Benjamin Franklin, painted by Mason Chamberlain in 1762, during Franklin's first mission to England, was sold in London the other day for 2800 guineas. The picture, after passing out of the possession of the Franklin family, belonged to Joshua Bates, of London, and it was while the picture was in his hands that the only copy of it was taken—a copy by Leslie, which Bates presented to Harvard College.

"WAR PENS" HIGHLY VALUED

Those Used in Affixing Signatures to Peace Treaties Command a Big Price From Collectors.

The pens with which peace treaties are signed invariably fetch high prices, if they happen to find their way into the market, and there are many people who would be willing to draw a check for $1,000 or more for the pen which will be used to sign the treaty of peace between the Balkan states and Turkey.

It is interesting to know that when it became public property that peace had been proclaimed between Russia and Japan pen manufacturers in all parts of the world sent supplies of their pens to those engaged in drawing up the treaty, hoping that the document would be completed by the agency of their wares. In order to avoid any unfair discrimination between the penmakers it was eventually decided to use quill pens for the signing of the treaty.

It was a quill pen that was used by the Spanish commissioners when they put their signatures to the treaty of peace drawn up after hostilities had ceased between this country and Spain. This particular pen, by the way, sold for $125 some time afterward.

The pen used by the plenipotentiaries in signing the memorable treaty of Paris fell into the hands of the Empress Eugenie. Apart from its historical interest, this pen is of considerable value, for it is mounted in solid gold and encrusted with diamonds.

The English home secretary occasionally receives an application from a relic hunter for the pen with which he has signed the actual order of a reprieve. When Viscount Llandaff was home secretary, during the reign of the late Queen Victoria, he received several hundred such applications.

Queen Victoria always retained possession of the pens that were used to set aside death sentences. One of these pens which was studded with jewels and worth several pounds, was presented by her majesty to Mme. Albani, the vocalist.

Mme. Patti received a "reprieve pen" from ex-Queen Isabella of Spain, and for many years the diva carried it with her wherever she went.

Pens which have been used by famous authors often fetch high prices when put up for sale by auction. Charles Dickens used a quill pen to write part of "Hard Times," "Little Dorritt" and "Bleak House" at the Villa Les Montineaux, and this was sold some time ago for $17.50.

Europe's Smallest State.

The centenary of the Napoleonic wars calls attention to the existence of the smallest state in Europe, the autonomous republic of Moresnet, on the boundary between Germany and Belgium. Moresnet has an area of barely one and one-quarter square miles, and a population of 3,500. A boundary commission settling the frontiers after the fall of Napoleon in 1814 was unable to agree upon the ownership of this tiny piece of land, and finally left the question for future settlement. Meanwhile it was to be administered jointly by two states. The joint administration soon resulted in an administration by neither state, and the community became self-governing under the protection of Prussia and Belgium. In 1841 the two guaranteeing countries gave the district its own independent administration. It has no courts, but litigants can choose between the Belgian and Prussian tribunals in beginning litigation, which is subject to the laws neither of Germany nor of Belgium, but of the ancient code Napoleon. On reaching military age, the youth of Moresnet have the choice of serving either Belgium or Germany.

Astronomical Discoveries.

The particular universe of stars in which we dwell is half again as large in scale as the world has been supposing. Our own sun is still youthful, and keeps traveling northwardly through space at the comparatively leisurely pace of twelve miles per second, or only two-thirds the average speed of stars of its own class. The North star is not really a single star, but triple, consisting of three suns revolving about a common center. These are some of the recent discoveries of the Lick observatory, the famous graduate astronomical department of the University of California. People who learned their astronomy twenty years ago, or five years ago, will have to change many of their ideas of the universe in the light of the Lick observatory's newly achieved knowledge as to how the heavenly bodies are born and live and die. Nowhere in the world is so much being done to alter and expand man's knowledge of the stellar universe as on Mount Hamilton, under the direction of Dr. W. W. Campbell, the famous director of the Lick observatory.

Queen's Pearl Rope Broke.

The accident which recently befell the pearl necklaces of the queen dowager of Italy, when the string broke and the priceles little spheres were scattered in every direction, recalls a similar mishap to the splendid fivefold rope which used to adorn the neck of Queen Alexandra on certain state occasions, the Pall Mall Gazette remarks.

On stepping into the gilded coach in her way to a state opening of parliament in the last reign her necklace caught in the ornate door handle and the pearls fell in a shower and rolled from the crimson carpet onto the muddy ground.

Impressions of London

By a Campbell Visitor.

It is hard for a Californian to give impressions of London in the wintertime. Some impressions are best kept out of print, for the necessary language would not be becoming to so modest and respectable a newspaper as our Campbell Press.

Though London is a wonderful city in a great many respects, a Californian certainly couldn't call the weather pleasant, except perhaps, a part of a day in the course of several weeks. No one can realize what a London fog is, until they have experienced it, and no one seeks a repetition of that experience. During a fog the entire day is darker than our midnight,—the street lights are kept burning all day, and at that one can not see the lights across the street. At these times, which are the worst, the little street waifs have an opportunity of making some pennies by showing people across the streets. They carry lighted oil torches, and by following closely behind them, the danger of a team or taxicab running into one is greatly lessened. The fog is peagreen in color and, when mixed with a great amount of soft coal smoke, it is most disagreeable for it irritates the eyes, nose, and throat and chokes up the lungs, besides having a damp cold effect on the whole body. Not all the days are like this by any means, but a person has the tendency to remember the worst. Besides at this time of the year a real sunny day is seldom seen, and when it does occur the newspapers comment on it at length next day.

The street plan of London is very complicated, consequently the names and directions are confusing and difficult to keep in mind. Few streets run parallel to each other, because the city is made up of so many small cities that have grown together. One must learn a different name and a different direction for the main streets in each of the old cities.

Often, many streets intersect one another at the "squares" or "circuses," as they are called, and these are the most important business centers. They are often named after some battle field such as Trafalgar or Waterloo.

The buildings are not high nor of any special style of architecture, consequently a city of five million must spread over an enormous area. This fact is most noticeable when one tries to hurry from one side of the city to another and finds the distance to be miles. Many of the buildings are ugly, dirty, and dingy due to smoke and soot; but often beautiful old houses of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries are seen. These frequently have a small marble sign on the front showing the house to be of historical importance, by giving names and dates of famous occupants.

Street cars are seldom seen in London and then in the outter sections of the city. Instead there is a very good underground system and more important a large motor omnibus system. These buses carry about forty people and prove to be very convenient but unsightly. They are completely covered with posters advertising every thing from Heinz pickles to aeroplanes. The system is a good one for after a person learns the different routes, from most points one can easily get to nearly any other part of the city for a few cents. The buses are immense, and the seats on the top are the best when the weather permits, for this section is not enclosed. It is remarkable how these large buses dodge in and out through the crowded, narrow streets with practically no accident or mishaps. Buses of this type were the only means of conveyance during a heavy storm in Berlin, for the street cars and taxicabs were blocked.

The parks and gardens are pretty and extensive, but not as advantageously arranged as in Berlin or Vienna, for these arms of the large parks reach down almost to the center of the city. Here the parks are spacious, green, and pretty but are situated some distance from most parts of the city.

A description of Parliament buildings, cathedrals, towers, and castles would take chapters, and they are familiar to your readers. Though they are beautiful and effective in their architecture, and the history that has been made in them is very impressive and fascinating—yet, I am more than happy at the thought that I will soon be returning home to Sunny California.

REPUBLICANS and Democrats living in California are practically of one opinion that whatever reductions are made in the tariff at coming session of Congress, citrus fruits should keep what little protection they now have as it is manifestly unfair that this industry should have to compete with the low wage of $25 per month paid in Italy while our orchardists are paid $75 for the same kind of work. We do not want our workmen paid less but we do want a duty on Italian fruit sufficient to keep foreigners from glutting the home market and ruining a great industry.—Gilroy Gazette.

THE wonderful generosity of the west has been shown in the readiness with which it responded to the call of distress from the flooded Eastern districts. Thousands of dollars have been subscribed and raised in various ways to assist the sufferers. To be sure this is but a return of the kindness rendered this section of the state at the time of its calamity, but the regard of man for his brother is such these days that the thot of one section in distress moves all other sections in pity.

One novel method of raising funds was adopted by Manager Frank E. Chapin of Santa Clara County Electric lines. All the income of the Alum Rock Park line for Tuesday was given to the cause, lady conductors and assistants handling the funds. The Park is a popular resort on the east side of the valley and many picnic parties and individual trips were taken on thisday to help swell the proceeds. The plan, which was a very good one, netted the relief fund of committee San Jose almost $200 and Manager Chapin and his assistants are receiving a great deal of warranted praise for their part in the work.

IN compliance with the request in last week's paper for opinions for or against incorporation I will state that I have no objection to incorporation as such. If the business section of Campbell and the immediate vicinity wish to incorporate, let them do so but let them leave out all outlying additions where there is a majority of the residents opposed to it.

I am confident that there is an overwhelming majority against it in the Sunnyside Addition and it is my intention to take a straw vote and I will publish the results later on.

It has been my lot to live and own property in several incorporated towns and my experience has been that people have quite generally found that the application of city government to a small town has not been an unmixed blessing.

Frequently after a few months' trial they would disincorporate if possible.

I hope for a full and free discussion of this matter before any irrevocable steps have been taken and our property holders compelled to assume unnecessary burdens in addition to those which we are already bearing up under. E. FRITZ, Sunnyside Avenue.

DECENT JOURNALISM.

A BILL has been introduced in each branch of the Colorado legislature making it unlawful "for the owner, manager, editor or reporter of any paper, or other person, to publish or cause to be published in any newspaper, indecent and disgusting details (whether true or not) of any crime, vice, scandal or other matter which shall have a tendency to corrupt private morals or to offend common decency, or to make vice or crime seem attractive."

The Citizens' Protective League of Denver, which is back of the movement for clean journalism, sprang into existence as a result of a call for improved newspapers in Colorado, and reputable newspapers everywhere are its advocates.

The bill referred to will no doubt pass the Colorado legislature, and similar measures will doubtless result in other states. Newspapers, as a rule, want to be decent, and are ready to welcome all legislation which will put them on the same elevated plane of decency and decent competition.

In the past it has been said that the public demands disgusting details, and competition between newspapers has to a large extent been the cause of what has been termed "yellow journalism." But while there are undoubtedly those who want their news "dished up" in the most salacious manner, the percentage of such persons is not large and is happily growing smaller.

The field for news is not circumscribed; there are so many ways in which a newspaper can make itself entertaining, amusing, useful and valuable, that there is no excuse to pander to the worst passions and the vitiated tastes of the small minority.

Such legislation as is proposed is evidence that the world is getting better, and not that the newspapers are getting worse. And it is because the people are becoming better and hence more particular as to the character of their reading matter, that the newspapers themselves are joining in a movement which will have a tendency to protect them in their wish to be decent.—Morning Times.

The Birds' Views on Women's Spring Hats

"Spring is the time when women dont wear so many feathers on their hats," said Johnny Wren to Jenny. "Isn't that lucky for us?"

"Yes, I'm glad they don't clothe themselves in feathers from head to foot. But, in order to supply the winter trade, there is a lot of wholesale murder going on the year round. If we fly to the uttermost parts of the earth, the hunters follow. If the women had to do the killing themselves, they wouldn't want to wear so many wings. But the milliners' windows are all they see."

"Well," said Johnny Wren, "we are fairly safe because we are so small and dull colored that nobody wants to steal our clothes."

"No bird is safe," said Jenny Wren. "The women wear all kinds, from buzzards to wrens. Besides most bird millinery is dyed, so dull colors are changed to gay ones."

"Then, if they dye plumage, why don't people use hen feathers and rooster tails?" asked Johnny.

"They do. They use so many of both and make them into such new and unnatural shapes that it is almost impossible to tell by looking at the top of a hat, who was the original owner of its decorations. But all these ingenious things help to keep the fashion going. So the fashion continues."

"I don't blame the hunters so much that I forget who is really most to blame. There are hunters, taxidermists, wholesalers, shippers, drummers, retailers, but at the end of the long line stands the final customer with the money."

"If lovers and husbands condemned bird millinery, and no woman paid its price, no market hunter could earn his living at the business. He would be forced to look for a better job."

Not the Answer He Expected.

Whitefield, whose dramatic appeals to his listeners were always a noteworthy part of his sermons, once preached to a body of seamen in New York. In the course of his sermon he introduced the following words:

"Well, my boys, we have a clear sky and are making fine headway over a smooth sea before a light breeze, and we shall soon lose sight of land. But what means this sudden lowering of the heavens and that dark cloud rising from the western horizon? Hark! Don't you hear the distant thunder? Don't you see those flashings of lightning? There is a storm gathering. Every man to his duty! How the waves rise and dash against the ship! The air is dark. The tempest rages! Our masts are gone! The ship is on her beam ends! What next?"

The hands of every sailor were gripping the pews in front of them, and a wild excitement was in their eyes. And when the preacher reached the climax of his dramatic speech they sprang to their feet in a body and shouted, "Take the longboat!"—New York Sun.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured
by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.
We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.
